

Leadership

This assessment is based on the responses given in the Extended DISC® Individual Assessment Questionnaire. This assessment should not be the sole criterion for making decisions about oneself. The purpose of this assessment is to provide supporting information for the respondent in self-development

Tyler Wilson

Organization:

Ford Meter Box

Date:

10.06.2023

Introduction to Your Leadership Assessment

Tyler, you have undoubtedly realized that your success as a leader is determined in a very large part by how well you interact with your employees and other people. Your ability to effectively relate, communicate, influence and motivate others is a crucial skill in succeeding in your profession and creating successful, long-term relationships with subordinates, managers, customers, prospects, colleagues, friends and family members.

You have probably noticed it is very easy to get along with certain people. You almost instantly and effortlessly understand the other person. The communication just flows. It is a lot more than just mutual understanding of what is being said. It is as if the person sees you and the rest of the world in very similar terms. When it happens, everything is easier. Think about the last time it happened. Wasn't it effortless and uncomplicated?

Unfortunately, with most people interactions take more effort. They do not flow as easily. You cannot quite understand where the other person is coming from, what they really want, and what their intentions are. You may also have an uncomfortable feeling the other person is experiencing the same. You know the outcomes of the interaction are not quite what you want. You are likely to feel disappointed, frustrated and even tired. It takes energy, effort and concentration. Still, the results are not what you hoped they would be.

In these situations you probably feel there is something you could do, but are not quite sure what that is. You know your end goal – your destination – but are not sure how to get there. It is like being lost without a map.

Tyler, this Leadership Assessment will provide you with the map to more successful interactions with others. You will learn:

1. The four main human behavioral styles.
2. Who you are and how others perceive you.
3. How to read other people and better understand them.
4. How to adjust your communication style to achieve your goals.

Very Brief Background of the Extended DISC® Model

Your Leadership Assessment is based on behavioral theories that have been used for over 90 years. The power of this model is that it is easy to learn, understand, and use because it identifies only four behavioral styles of individuals.

People can be divided in four main styles by identifying if they are more:

1. People- or Task-oriented.
2. Reserved or Active.

The resulting four styles are called:

D-style (Dominance)

I-style (Influence)

S-style (Steadiness)

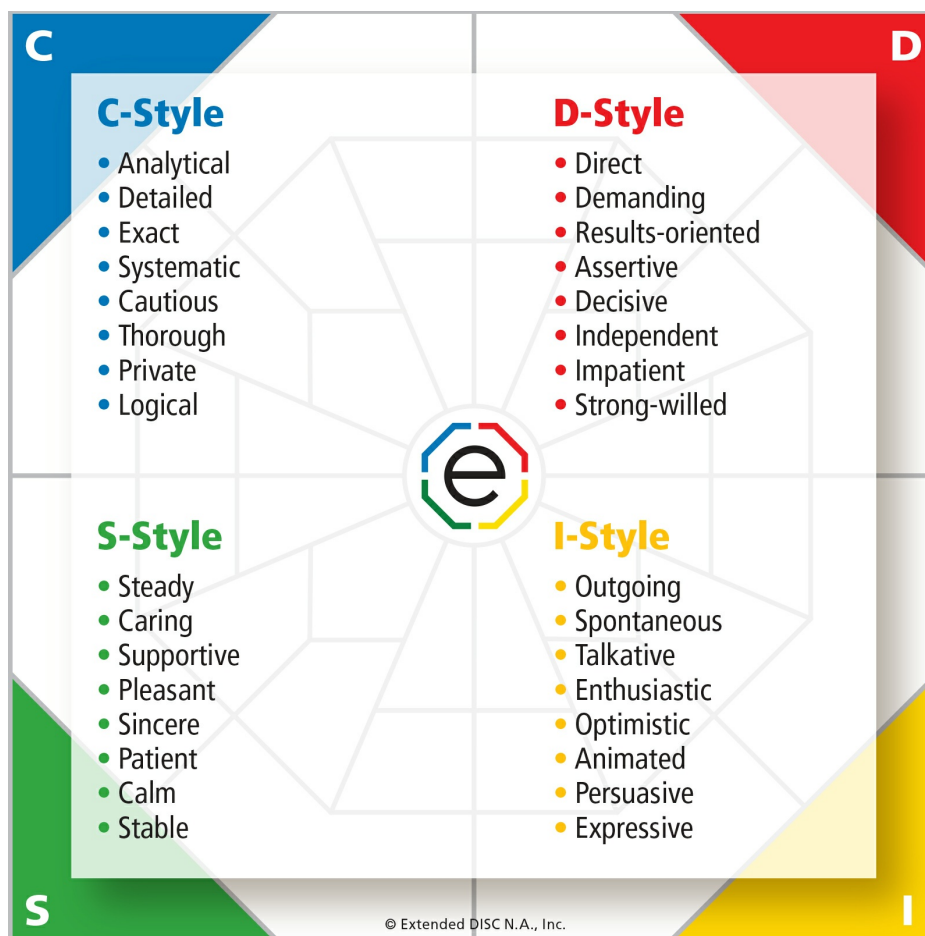

C-style (Conscientiousness)

The DISC Behavioral Styles - The Key points:

In the following pages you will learn about the four DISC-styles. As you get comfortable with their own unique traits and tendencies, please keep the following important points in mind:

- None of the styles are better or worse.
- All styles have strengths and development areas. They just happen to be different.
- Your style does not limit what you can accomplish or how successful you can be. It simply predicts how you tend to do things.
- You can find all of the four styles represented by very successful people. However, the most successful people know who they are. They modify their style appropriately with different styles of people and in different situations.

Your Leadership Profiles

The Profiles are a visual representation of your behavioral style. They are based on your responses to the questionnaire. There are no right or wrong answers.

Profile I: Perceived Need to Adjust- Your adjusted style reflects an adjustment that you perceive would help you be successful in your current environment.

Profile II: Natural Style - Your natural style remains fairly stable, but not rigid, over your adult life. It is the style that is most comfortable to you and uses the least energy. Most individuals are a combination of styles.

The styles (D, I, S, and C) that are above the middle line (=top half of the Profile II) are your natural styles. The styles that show below the middle line means that they require more energy from you.

There are no good or bad behavioral styles - just different ones.

Your Profile I and II

Profile I - Perceived Need to Adjust

Profile II - Natural Style

Your DISC style is: SC (S - 55%, C - 45%)

Your DISC Style

The DISC Model is divided into four quadrants: D, I, S and C.

The rectangle identified in color shows the location of your natural style. Determine in what quadrant it is placed. This is your most natural and comfortable behavioral style (D, I, S or C). The shadings demonstrate the behavioral styles that are quite comfortable for you.

The DISC quadrant(s) that have shading represent your DISC comfort areas or your natural style.

The DISC quadrant(s) that have no shading represent DISC styles requiring more energy from you.

Tyler at a Glance

This page is a description of how your employees and others are likely to perceive you. In other words, while the text describes your typical behavior as seen by others, you certainly can modify your behavior to fit the needs of a particular situation and/or individual(s). Also, you may have already addressed the development areas by learning new skills.

How Your Employees May Perceive You:

Calm, steady, patient, practical, kind, follows instructions, careful, detail-oriented, organized, undemanding, modest, fair, concentrating.

How Your Employees May Perceive Your Communication Style:

He is always better at listening than at informing in writing, inspiring or leading. He surrounds himself with peace and trust, being purposeful and steady in his talk. He could be more active and express his opinion more boldly, as he usually has more ideas than he shows.

How Your Employees May Perceive Your Decision-making:

He is a careful decision maker who wants to consider different possibilities before acting. As a logical person, he makes logical decisions based on facts and reality and does not let emotions disturb his thoughts. He does not need to make changes with his decisions but considers it important to make correct decisions.

Tyler's Strengths:

- Masters details and little things
- Works according to the given roles
- Can concentrate on his own thing
- Doesn't provide unconsidered solutions
- Doesn't go beyond his role
- Can wait for his turn
- Doesn't want attention
- Very harmonious worker
- Achieves success through reliability
- Knows and follows the traditions of the team
- Stays in his own area
- Takes only what belongs to himself

"Knowing yourself is the beginning of all wisdom."

- Aristotle

Your Decision-Making Style

There is no best style for making decisions. However, we all have our own most comfortable way of decision-making. Successful people are aware of their preferred style and make conscious adjustments based on the requirements of each unique situation.

Interpreting the bar graphs is simple:

The rectangles to the right side of the graph identify your preferred decision-making styles. Be conscious not to overuse them.

The rectangles to the left side of the graph identify decision-making styles requiring more energy from you. You CAN make decisions this way as long as you concentrate more.

*"It is understanding that gives us the ability to have peace. When we understand the other fellow's viewpoint, and he understands ours, then we can sit down and work out our differences."
- Harry S. Truman*

How Your Employees View your Decision-Making Style

No matter what you do, others will have their own perceptions of your behavior.

Tyler, this is how your decision-making style may come across to your employees.

He is a careful decision maker who wants to consider different possibilities before acting. As a logical person, he makes logical decisions based on facts and reality and does not let emotions disturb his thoughts. He does not need to make changes with his decisions but considers it important to make correct decisions.

- Helps rather than makes decisions
- Makes sure of all possible outcomes first
- Delays as long as possible

Identify an aspect of your decision-making style that is most comfortable for you. What impact does it have in your current position?

Identify an aspect of your decision-making style that is least comfortable for you. What impact does it have in your current position? What can you do to improve?

Your Motivators

You tend to like and feel comfortable with these items. Are you taking advantage of comfort areas?

Tyler enjoys himself in safe, familiar, stable surroundings. He supports progress which is planned and quiet. He likes clearly determined tasks, where everybody knows his/her role and is kept busy.

You are more likely to respond positively and feel energized if these factors are present in your work environment.

- Security and correctness
- Clear and exact operating instructions
- Criteria for decision-making
- Appreciation as an expert
- Possibility to concentrate on his work
- Consistency and appreciation for traditions
- Diminishing all risk factors
- Support in starting new projects
- Thorough and planned progress
- Lots of information to support decision making
- Enough time to dig into problems
- Possibility to plan beforehand

Identify two Motivators that are being fulfilled in your current position.

1 _____

2 _____

How can you increase their effect on your performance? Be specific.

Situations that Reduce Your Motivation

All of us face situations on a daily basis that we do not like much and tend to drain our energy levels. The items below are likely to decrease your motivation and require more energy from you.

- Acting against agreements
- Uncertainty and insecurity
- Being the key person
- Having to dare to go alone into the unknown
- Presenting in front of total strangers
- Taking risks
- Insecurity
- Things that need to be performed simultaneously
- Restless people
- Carelessness
- Chaos and disagreements
- People who don't appreciate his results

Carefully consider Situations that Reduce Your Motivation. Be aware of their impact on making your goals a reality. Are you prone to procrastinate with situations/tasks that correspond to items listed above?

Identify two Situations that Reduce Your Motivation that create the greatest challenge in your current position.

1 _____

2 _____

How can you decrease their effect on your performance? Be specific.

Your Strengths

Strengths are items that tend to be easier, more natural and require less energy from you.

- Masters details and little things
- Works according to the given roles
- Can concentrate on his own thing
- Doesn't provide unconsidered solutions
- Doesn't go beyond his role
- Can wait for his turn
- Doesn't want attention
- Very harmonious worker
- Achieves success through reliability
- Knows and follows the traditions of the team
- Stays in his own area
- Takes only what belongs to himself

Most of us tend to overlook our strengths, even taking them for granted. Do not let that happen to you. Instead, consider the items listed above and think how well you are taking advantage of these valuable behavioral traits. Please use caution however; remember that an overused strength very often becomes a weakness and a serious liability to our performance.

Identify two Strengths that you can capitalize upon in your current position.

1 _____

2 _____

How can you maximize the impact of your Strengths? Be specific.

Reactions to Pressure Situations

These are NOT descriptions of your weaknesses or present behavior. They are items that you should be cautious about since these reactions in pressure situations may become more evident. Understanding how you react to pressure situations can make it easier to deal with them.

- Thinks too long before deciding
- When clarifying something, makes things complicated
- Wants to gather all possible information
- Blocks himself out from the environment
- Wants to develop new but not to give away the old
- Obeys and doesn't control the environment
- Gets stuck in one place
- Reacts slowly and hesitates
- Hesitates when one should decide
- Doesn't want to be seen as the first one in line
- Gives information but doesn't make decisions
- Checks things too many times - does not move forward

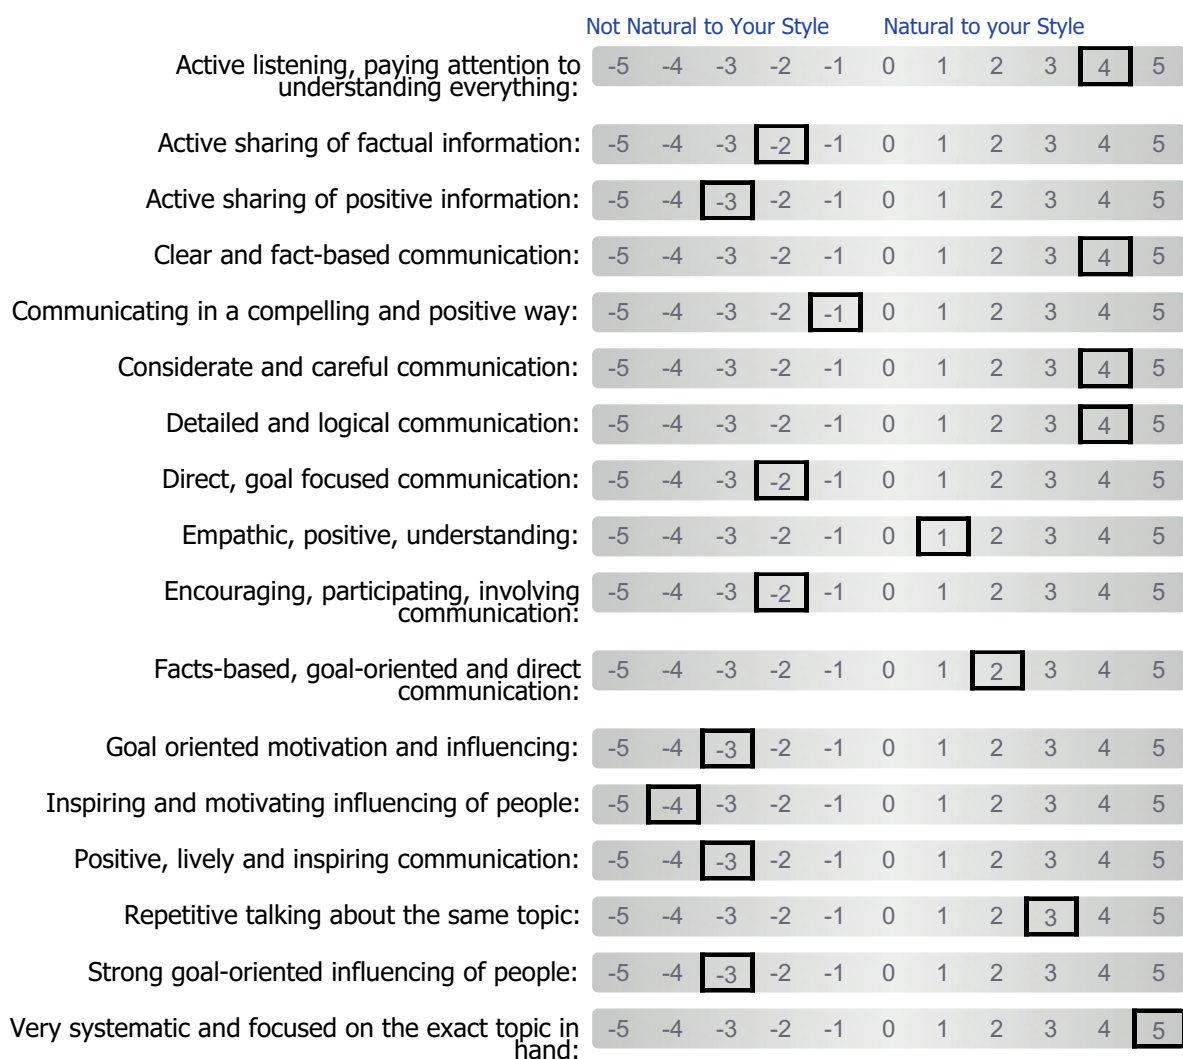

Your Communication Style

We all have our own unique communication style. When we become aware of how we tend to communicate with others, it becomes easier to make conscious modifications to our style. These modifications improve our effectiveness with others.

Interpreting the bar graphs is simple:

The rectangles to the right side of the graph identify your preferred communication styles. Be conscious not to overuse them.

The rectangles to the left side of the graph identify communication styles require more energy from you. You CAN communicate this way, but it may require more energy and concentration.

How Others View Your Communication Style

Your message and your communication style come across differently to different people. While you cannot control others, you can be more aware of your natural communication style and how it is perceived by others. Then you can make the necessary adjustments in your interactions with others.

Tyler, this is how others may perceive your communication style.

He is always better at listening than at informing in writing, inspiring or leading. He surrounds himself with peace and trust, being purposeful and steady in his talk. He could be more active and express his opinion more boldly, as he usually has more ideas than he shows.

Identify an aspect of your communication style that is the most comfortable for you. What impact does it have in your current position? How can you capitalize on it more effectively?

Identify an aspect of your communication style that is the least comfortable for you. What impact does it have in your current position? What can you do to improve?

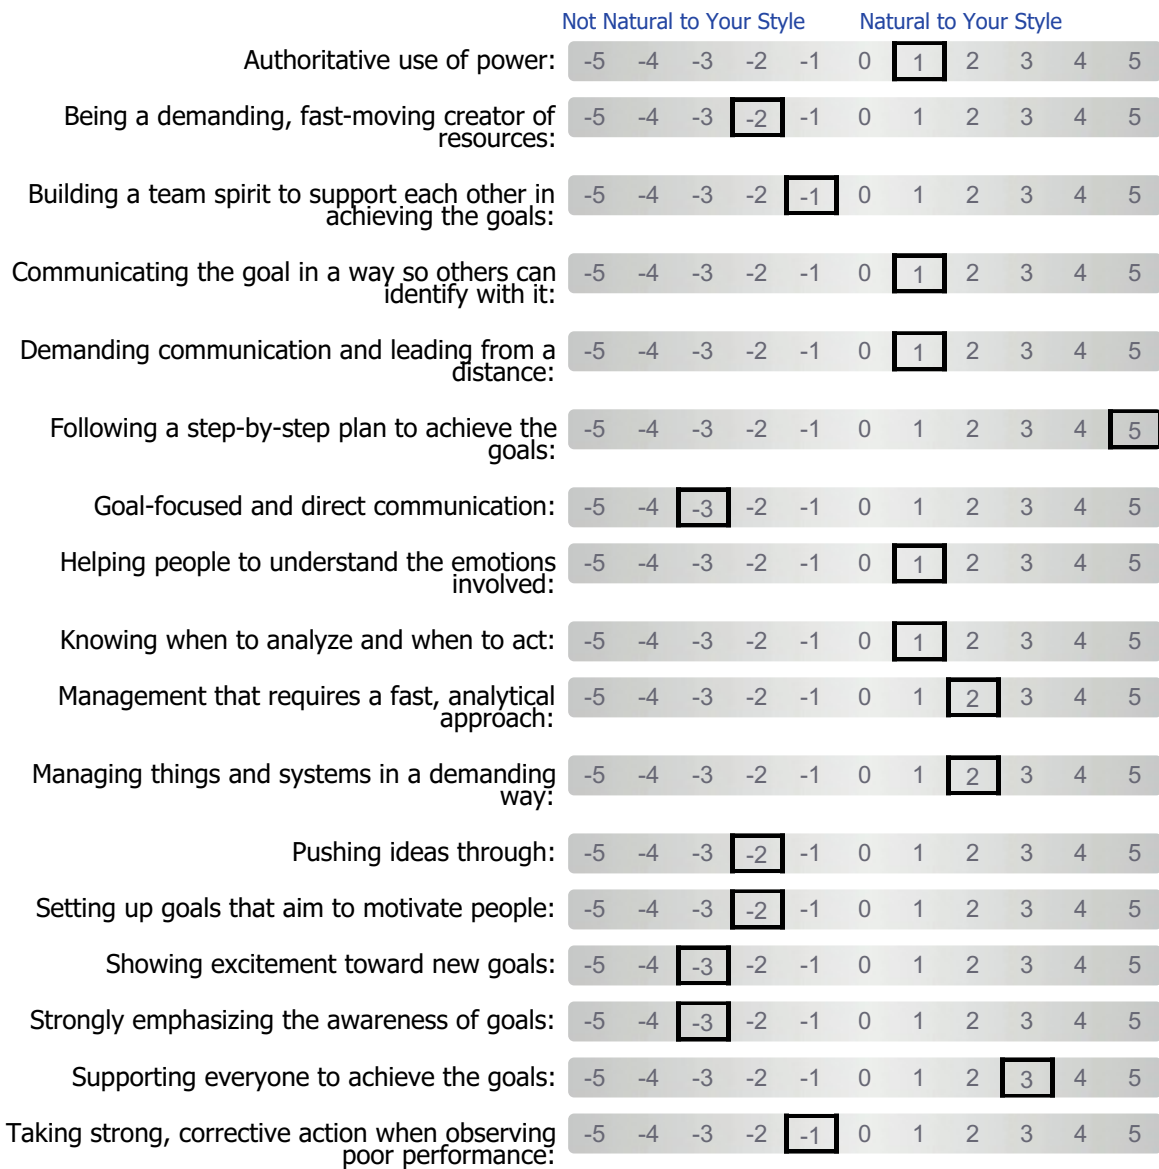

How You Achieve Your Goals

Interpreting the bar graphs is simple:

The rectangles to the right side of the graph identify how you prefer to achieve your goals. These items require very little energy.

The rectangles to the left side of the graph identify items requiring more energy from you. You CAN achieve your goals in this way, but they are likely to require more energy and concentration.

How You Lead Your Employees

Interpreting the bar graphs is simple:

The rectangles to the right side of the graph identify how you prefer to lead your employees. These items require very little energy.

The rectangles to the left side of the graph identify items requiring more energy from you. You CAN lead in this way, but they are likely to require more energy and concentration.

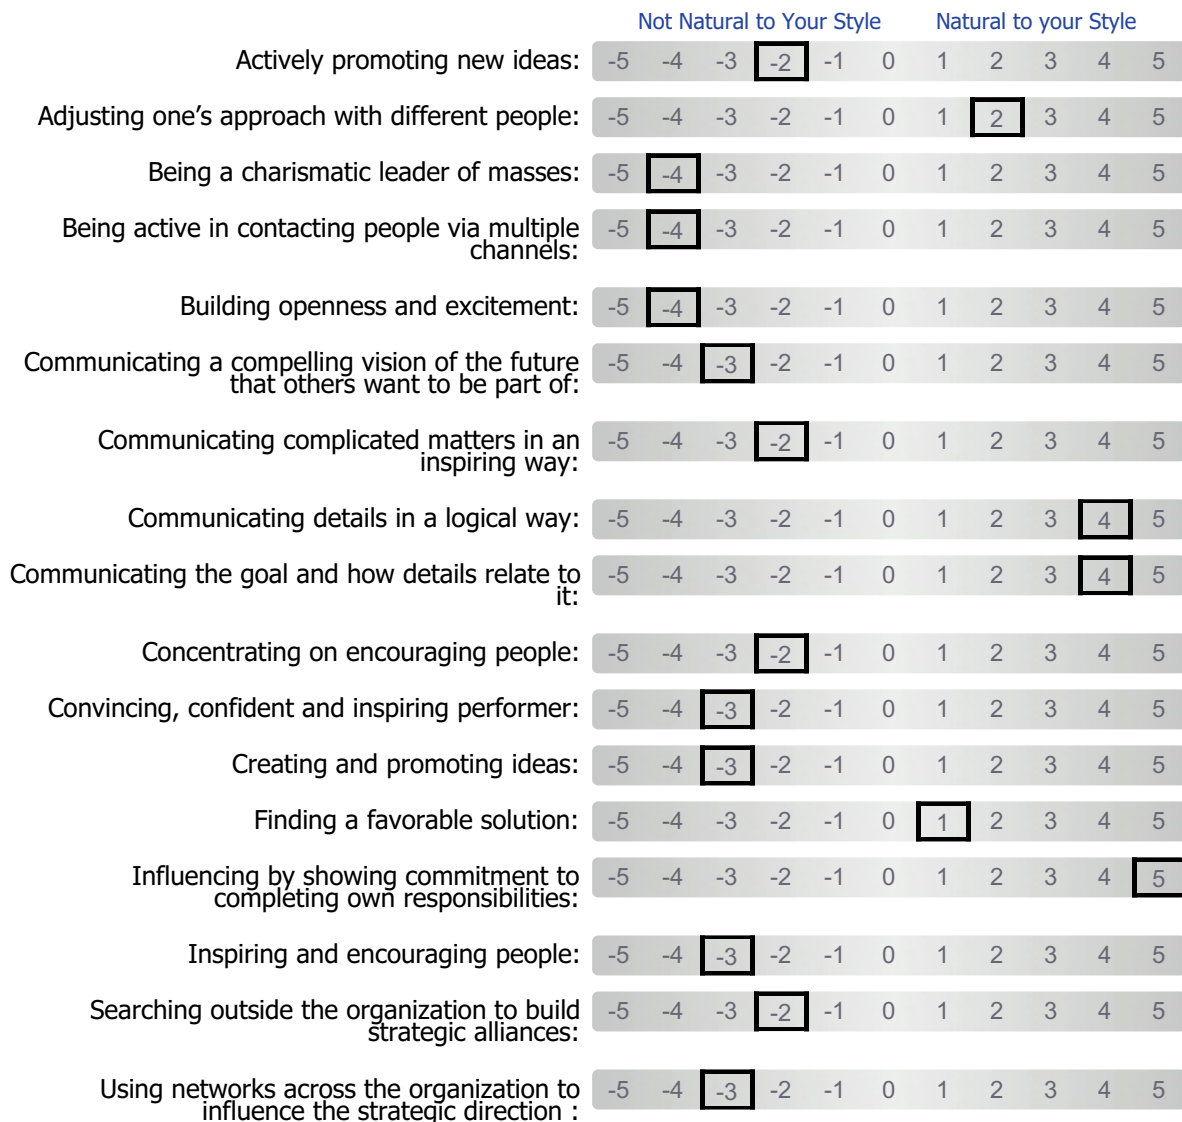

How You Motivate Your Employees

Interpreting the bar graphs is simple:

The rectangles to the right side of the graph identify how you prefer to motivate your employees.

The rectangles to the left side of the graph identify items requiring more energy from you. You CAN motivate in these ways, but they are likely to require more energy and concentration.

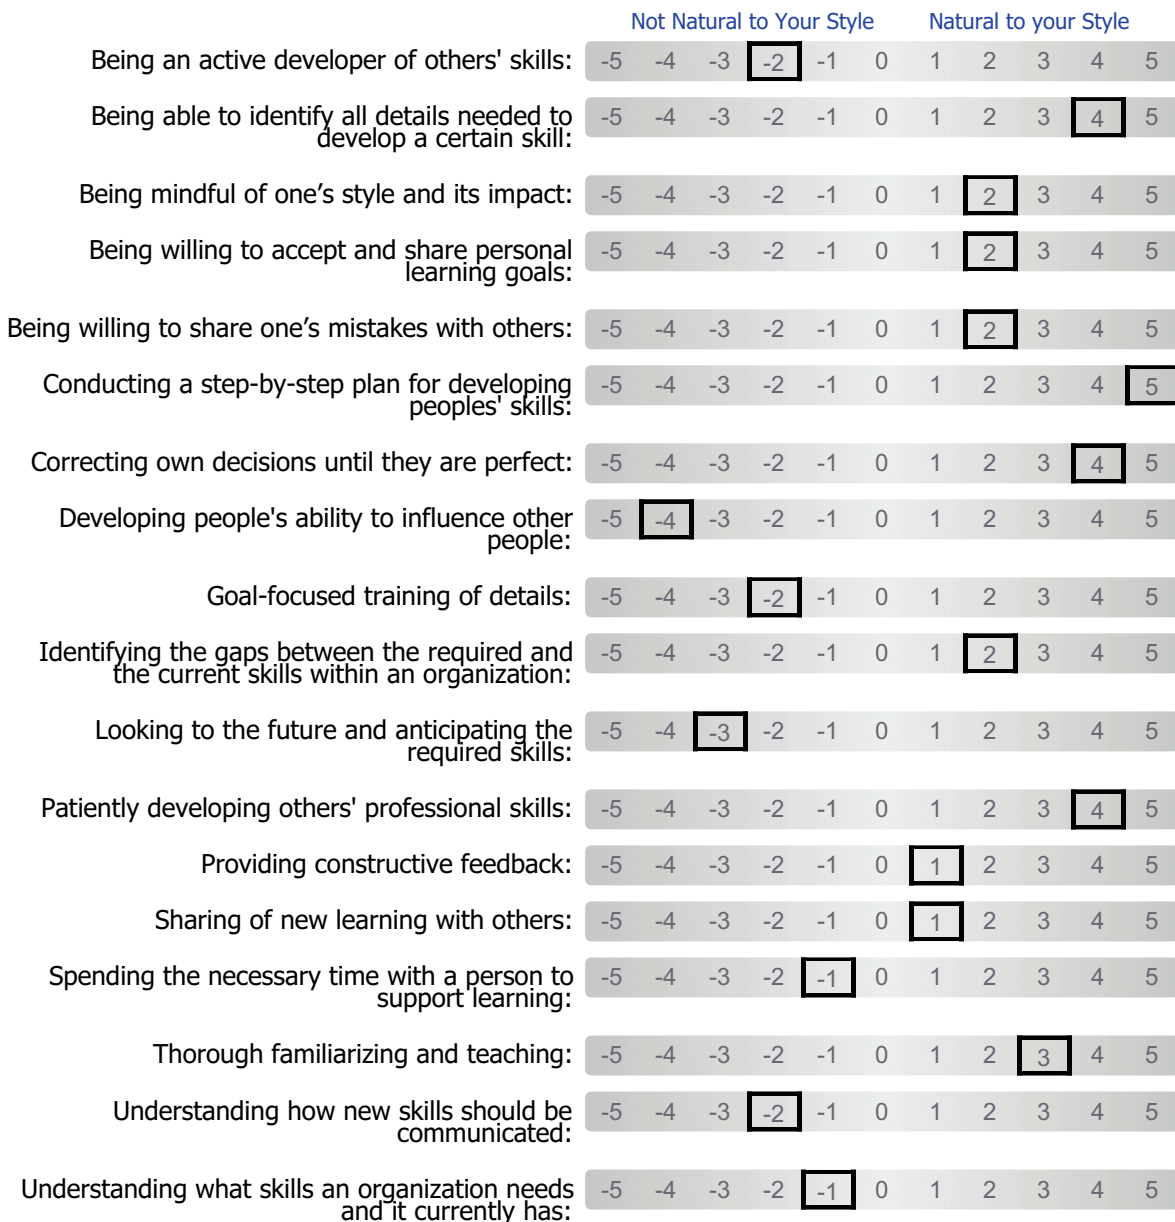

How You Develop Your Employees

Interpreting the bar graphs is simple:

The rectangles to the right side of the graph identify how you prefer to develop your employees. These items require very little energy.

The rectangles to the left side of the graph identify items requiring more energy from you. You CAN develop your employees in this way, but these items are likely to require more energy and concentration.

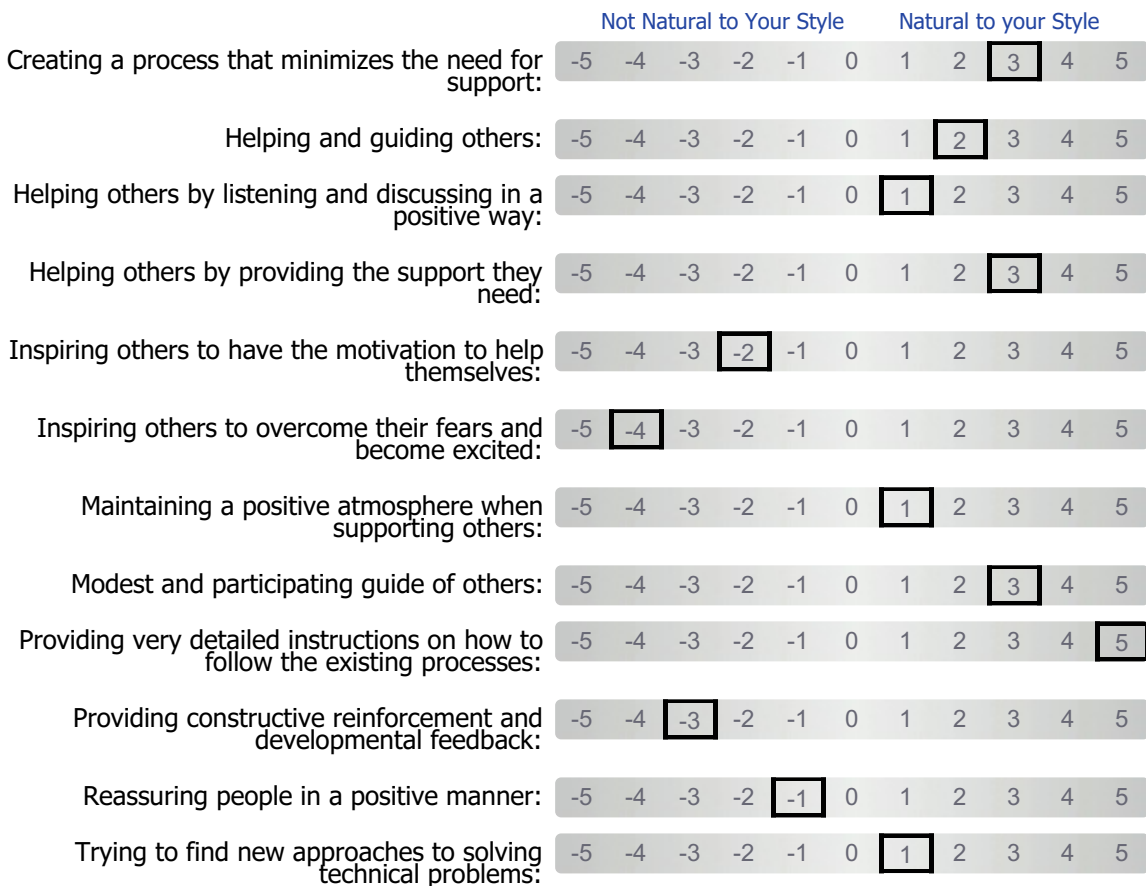

How You Help Your Employees Achieve Their Goals

Interpreting the bar graphs is simple:

The rectangles to the right side of the graph identify how you prefer to help your employees. These items require very little energy.

The rectangles to the left side of the graph identify items requiring more energy from you. You CAN help your employees in this way, but these items are likely to require more energy and concentration.

Improving Your Success As A Leader

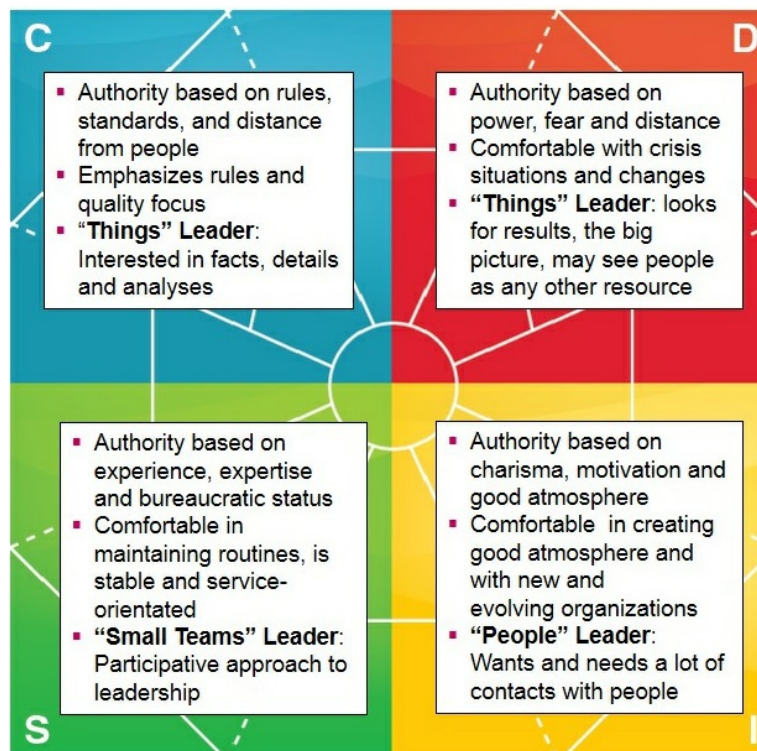

Tyler, below are a few reminders and suggestions on how to further improve your success as a leader.

Reminders:

- Make sure that you focus on your leadership duties and not on operative tasks
- Learn to express that each event is unique and special
- Try to minimize the amount of your own work
- Ensure that the created policies and procedures do not make the organization slow and inflexible
- Train people to find solutions by themselves as much as possible
- Ensure in advance that your idea will be received with excitement
- Consider what things are actually important to plan in advance

Suggestions of What to Avoid:

- Do not create development plans that are too long-term - or at the very least, do not follow plans developed too long ago
- Do not suffocate others with too much inflexibility
- Participating cannot mean doing your subordinates' work
- Do not dwell on small problems if the larger goals will be achieved
- Remember that people want to be managed as well - but not the same way as systems and things are managed
- Make new ideas worth waiting for - do not disparage them publicly
- After achieving a certain quality standard, do not aim higher on the cost of something else

How to Identify Others' Styles

Now that you have identified your own style, the next step is to identify the styles of others so that you may then make the most effective adjustments to yours. This is a skill that takes practice, but is easy to learn.

As you become more familiar with the DISC-styles, you will find some people are easy to identify. You will quickly think to yourself: "She is a D-style" or "He is an S-style." These individuals are predominantly one style and can be identified easily.

The rest of the people you encounter will take a little more effort. However, it is a simple, three-step process of identifying other's style:

- Step 1. Observe
- Step 2. Assess
- Step 3. Recognize

Step 1: Observe

When you meet someone, pay attention to traits such as:

- what the person talks about
- how he/she says it – type of words (e.g. "I" vs. "We"), type of questions (e.g. "what?", "why?")
- body language
- tonality

You will discover that observing behaviors will become second nature. Soon you will observe behaviors without thinking.

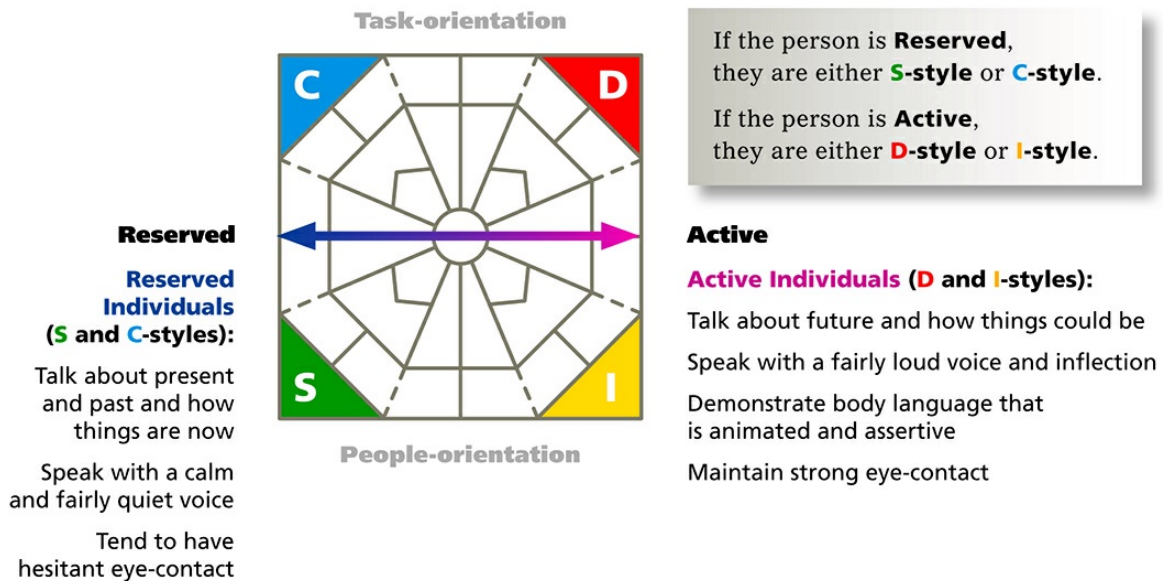

Step 2: Assess

Based on your observations, determine if the individual is more:

- Active
- Reserved

If the individual is Active, he/she is either D-style or I-style.

- Talks about future and how things could be
- Speaks with a fairly loud voice and inflection
- Demonstrates body language that is animated and assertive
- Maintains strong eye-contact

If the individual is Reserved, he/she is either S-style or C-style.

- Talks about present and past and how things are now
- Speaks with a calm and fairly quiet voice
- Demonstrates body language that is limited
- Tends to have hesitant eye-contact

Next, determine if the individual is more:

- Task-oriented
- People-oriented

Next, determine if the person is more:
Task-oriented or People-oriented

Task-oriented Individuals (C and D-styles):
Talk and ask about things
Focus more on tasks than people
Do not show a lot of emotion

Active

Reserved
People-oriented Individuals (S and I-styles):
Talk and ask about people
Focus more on people than tasks
Show emotion fairly easily

If the person is Task-oriented, they are either D-style or C-style.
If the person is People-oriented, they are either I-style or S-style.

If the individual is Task-oriented, he/she is either D-style or C-style.

- Talks and asks about things
- Focuses more on tasks than people
- Does not show a lot of emotion

If the individual is People-oriented, he/she is either I-style or S-style.

- Talks and asks about people
- Focuses more on people than tasks
- Shows emotion fairly easily

Step 3: Recognize

Now you have the information needed to identify the person's style by combining the Active-Reserved and Task-People Orientation.

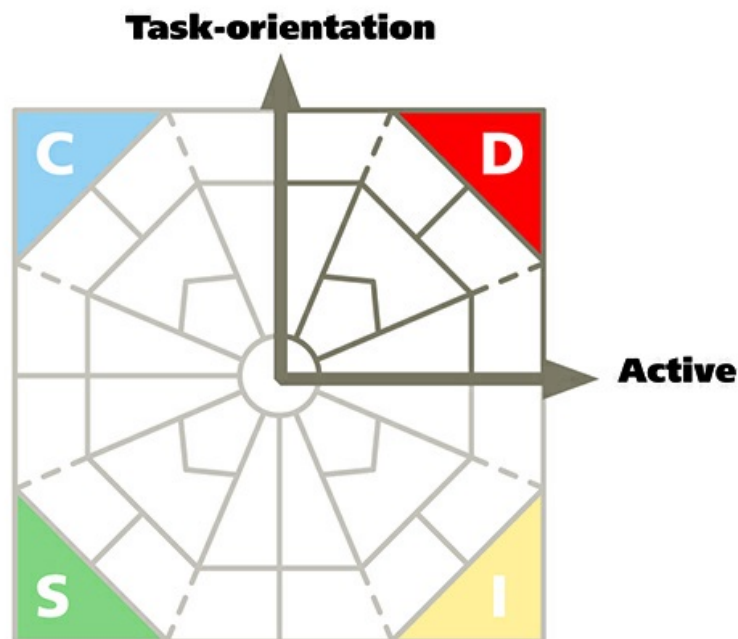

D-style = Active and Task-oriented

This is how to recognize D-styles.

Talks about: Goals, oneself, hard values ($, revenue, profits) results, change.

How to identify D-styles:

- Is decisive
- Is assertive
- Very impatient
- May interrupt you
- Is direct, says what thinks
- "What's the bottom line?"
- Focuses on the big picture
- States own opinions as facts
- "How does this benefit ME?"
- Often appears to be in a hurry
- Makes decisions quickly, almost hastily
- May talk to many people at the same time
- May have difficulty understanding others' viewpoints/feelings

I-style = Active and People-oriented

This is how to recognize I-styles.

Talks about: People, team-spirit, good things, future, oneself

How to identify I-styles:

- Talks a lot
- Is animated
- Is open and friendly
- Appears unorganized
- Does not listen for long
- Stays away from hard facts
- Does not pay close attention
- Jumps from subject to subject
- Does not focus much on details

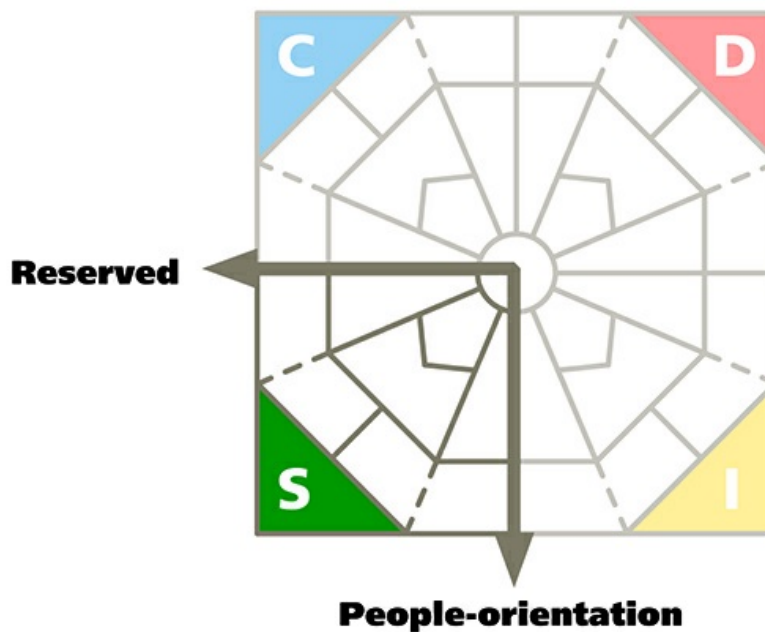

S-style = Reserved and People-oriented

This is how to recognize S-styles.

Talks about: Agreements, principles, past, proofs, one's team

How to identify S-styles:

- Is easy-going
- Appears calm
- Listens carefully
- Appears thoughtful
- Nods and goes along
- "Let me think about it"
- Likes own physical space
- Does not get easily excited
- Ponders alternatives, slow in making decisions
- Asks questions and inquires about the specifics
- Seems have strong opinions but does not express them vocally
- Completely new ideas/things seem to make him/her uncomfortable

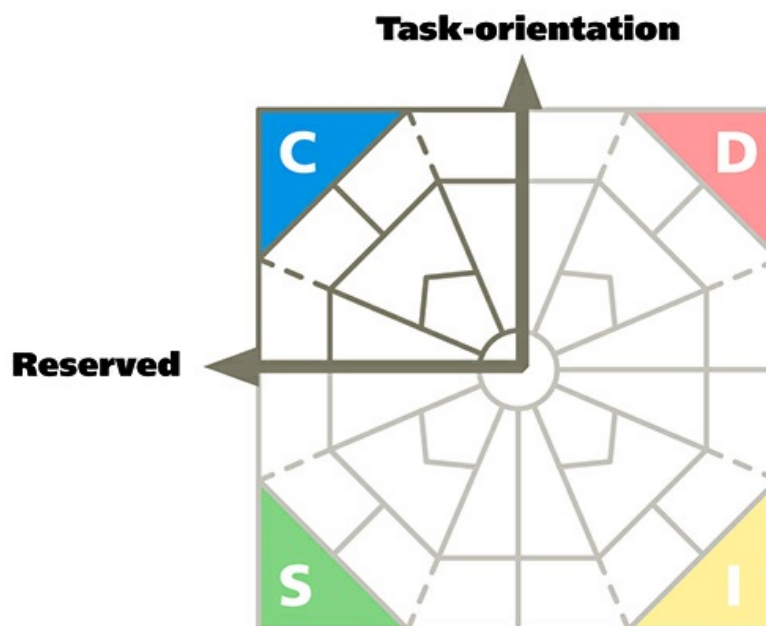

C-style = Reserved and Task-oriented

This is how to recognize C-styles.

Talks about: Facts, analyses, details, rules, instructions

How to identify C-styles:

- Is quiet
- Focuses on details
- Proceeds cautiously
- Asks many questions
- Appears reserved and somewhat timid
- Doesn't easily express disagreeing views
- May have done homework on your products/services
- Studies specifications and other information carefully
- Makes decision only after studying pertinent facts/issues
- May be very critical; criticism based on facts, not opinions

D-styles

"Winning takes precedence over all. There's no gray area. No almosts."

- Kobe Bryant

The D-style is the most aggressive and assertive of the four styles. D-styles tend to be quite competitive and results-oriented. As a result, you may identify D-styles as being quite aggressive, blunt and even rude. Under pressure they can appear to have a lack of concern for others. They do not want to lose control. D-styles want to be in charge and have the power.

D-styles prefer to move fast, take risks and get things done now. They like change and challenges. D-styles may also often want to create change.

D-styles can also be impatient and overbearing. They are often not very good listeners and are prone to make snap decisions.

Motto: I did it my way.

Focus: Actively controls tasks and things.

Under pressure – Lack of concern. This refers to D-styles' tendency to overlook how their actions and behaviors affect others.

Fear – Loss of control. This refers to D-styles' desire to be in charge. They do not want to give up control.

Favorite question: What? (What is the bottom line? What is in it for me?)

Communication Style:

- Often to only one direction – he/she talks and expects others to listen
- Expresses own opinions as facts that need no further discussion
- May be blunt and challenges others
- Interrupts others often

Tyler, when communicating with a D-style, remember to:

- Encourage them into positive consideration of all of the possibilities the product/service creates
- Create an image that you are a strong and reliable person
- Be aware of how much detail they want
- Emphasize the benefits they can realize
- Try to show them all of the new and exceptional things that you can offer
- Always state first what the key message is
- Avoid details

Tyler, what not to do with D-style:

- Do not be a bore
- Do not get stuck on one topic for too long
- Avoid being too stiff and inflexible
- Do not overload them with details
- Do not go into too much detail too soon
- Do not forget to show enthusiasm
- Leave details to a later date

Notes:

I-Styles

"Why fit in when you were born to stand out?"

- Dr. Seuss

I-styles are outgoing, social, and talkative, and like to be the center of attention. They like to interact with others and meet new people. They do not like to focus on details, or spend a lot of time by themselves. Others tend to perceive I-styles as very friendly, enthusiastic and animated.

I-styles are the influencing and interactive individuals who shake up their environment by bringing others into alliance with one another. They know what they want, align everyone together to get it done, and want everyone to like them as they move forward. Social acceptance is very important for I-styles – they like to be liked.

I-styles are talkative, sociable, optimistic and lively. They are people-oriented, spontaneous, energetic and enthusiastic. I-styles tend to be positive and good at influencing others.

I-styles can also be inattentive to details, overly talkative and emotional. They may over-promise because they are so optimistic and eager to be popular. Others may perceive I-styles as somewhat careless, impulsive and lacking follow-up.

Motto: "I am a nice person. Everyone should like me."

Focus: Actively involved with people and emotions.

Under pressure – Disorganized. I-styles have a tendency to focus so much on people that they may overlook details and tasks.

Fear – Social rejection. I-styles have a strong desire to be liked by others.

Favorite question: Who? (Who is going to be at the meeting? Who else is using this?)

Communication Style:

- Selling and inspiring
- Talks a lot, but not about details
- Avoids unpleasant subjects
- Good at providing positive, constructive feedback
- Not always direct

Tyler, when communicating with an I-style, remember to:

- Accept the sudden changes in discussion topics - but lead them carefully back to the actual topic
- Encourage them to consider what they could achieve with your product/service
- Emphasize the aspects that make you reliable
- Do not start talking about anything boring (e.g. detailed product features) requiring them to listen to things that do not interest them
- Actively communicate and show your enthusiasm
- Be active
- Encourage them to talk

Tyler, what not to do with an I-style:

- Try not to be boring
- Do not always provide your service the same way
- Do not be inflexible if you can close the sale by adjusting to their requirements
- Do not be boring
- Do not forget to smile
- Do not be too strict with them - show you can be flexible
- Do not forget to get excited about what they say

Notes:

S-Styles

"None of us, including me, ever do great things. But we can all do small things, with great love, and together we can do something wonderful."

- Mother Teresa

S-styles are steady, calm and laid back. While they do like interaction with other people, they are more reserved and less animated than I-styles. S-styles prefer things to remain the same because changes and surprises threaten their sense of security. Family and friends tend to be very important to S-styles. They often defend their own group or team almost emotionally; fairness and justice are very important to S-styles.

S-styles are reliable and stable with an emphasis on cooperating with whoever is in charge to carry out the tasks. They say: "Tell me what, when and how you want it done and I'll be glad to do it." If you do not give me enough details, I won't get started because you might blame me if it gets done wrong."

Since S-styles prefer stability and security, they tend to resist change and need support with it. They want to know how the change will affect their lives. S-styles are also prone to be hesitant in their actions and decision-making. This is primarily caused by their desire to consider others and for everyone to get along.

Motto: If it's not broken, let's not fix it.

Focus: Involved with familiar people.

Under pressure – Too willing. S-styles' have a tendency to be accommodating and polite. Often they say "yes" too easily.

Fear – Loss of stability. S-styles have a desire to have a stable and secure environment. Change can be challenging for S-styles.

Favorite Question: How? (How are we going to do this? How does this impact us?)

Communication Style:

- Often only to one direction, he/she listens
- Answers when asked
- Talks calmly
- Creates trust
- Talks about topics he/she masters
- Better in one-to-one situations
- Good instructor

Tyler, when communicating with an S-style, remember to:

- Be aware of information and details that can be covered later
- Talk about how things will work but do not go into too much detail
- Do not start arguing about opinions
- Spend time talking about general issues also
- Listen and understand; then try to solve the challenge
- Make them say what they want to achieve
- Always agree on the next two or three steps before moving forward

Tyler, what not to do with an S-style:

- Do not bring up anything they would consider additional risks; requiring further analysis
- Do not overanalyze; simplify
- Do not feel that you have to hide something or cannot tell everything
- Do not be too official
- Do not allow them to make a decision before you know it is the one you want
- Do not wait until they make a decision
- Do not hesitate to state your opinion

Notes:

C-Styles

"I have no special talent. I am only passionately curious."

- Albert Einstein

C-styles are the most analytical of the four behavioral styles. C-styles can be very detail-oriented, focusing on facts, information and proofs. They are comfortable working alone and are the most reserved of the four styles. C-styles are logical and methodical in their approach.

C-styles are cautious and compliant to their own high standards. Their emphasis is to work with the existing circumstances to ensure the quality of the product or service. C-styles make sure that everything works the way it should.

C-styles are sometimes too critical of others. They expect everyone to follow their standards. Their attention to detail and correctness can be perceived as nit-picky by others. C-styles' desire to do things correctly can also slow down their decision-making. They can over-analyze issues and need a lot of information.

Motto: "If we do not have time to do it right, do we have time to do it over again?" As a result, C-styles are good in ensuring quality control.

Focus: Analyzes tasks and things.

Under pressure – Overly critical. C-styles have a tendency to be so focused on the details that they often find mistakes and errors. The other styles may find C-styles too critical.

Fear – Criticism of work. C-styles want to be correct and to produce high-quality work. They do not want to make mistakes.

Favorite question: Why? (Why does it work this way? Why should we do it?)

Communication Style:

- Better in written communication
- Doesn't express disagreeing views
- Includes a lot of facts and details
- May miss the big picture
- Doesn't talk about opinions or abstract matters
- Extremely diplomatic

Tyler, when communicating with a C-style, remember to:

- Feed them with ideas and possibilities
- Be careful not to go into unnecessary details with them
- Tell them something they already know and make them believe they know the rest as well
- Always paint the big picture before going into the details
- Make yourself their friend
- When you go into details, remember not to get bogged down in them
- Make them state what they would be happy with

Tyler, what not to do with a C-style:

- Do not confuse them with too many choices
- Avoid any bureaucracy that would just delay the process
- If you have never done this before, do not let them know it
- Do not cover all their questions thoroughly; only the ones that are actually relevant
- Do not bring up details that do not support you achieving your goals
- Do not let them control what will happen next
- Do not let them control the pace

Notes:

Personal Action Plan: Your Next Steps

Experience has shown creating a concise, simple and specific action plan is the best way to improve performance. To do so, create your "Top 3" lists to help you become more successful.

My Top 3 Start and Stop List:

Based on what you have learned, discovered and realized through this report, list three important items you will START doing:

1 _____

2 _____

3 _____

Based on what you have learned, discovered and realized through this report, list three important items you will STOP doing:

1 _____

2 _____

3 _____

Based on what you have learned, discovered and realized through your report, list three important items you will CONTINUE doing:

1 _____

2 _____

3 _____

